

eReleases launched more than 25 years ago after founder Mickie Kennedy realized that small businesses desperately need a press release service they could actually afford. Mickie created eReleases to give small businesses access to the media and to a national newswire – all with a personal touch. eReleases has flourished since then, though the spirit of Mickie's original intent has not changed - offering personal service and the highest quality press release services to businesses of any size.

eReleases helps small businesses, startups, and authors get website traffic and better quality customers through coverage in the media. We write and distribute press releases to journalists, trade publications, and key industry influencers, increasing your visibility and credibility, while bringing you more revenue from your dream clients.